

Marcel Tabuteau

How Do You Expect to Play the Oboe If You Can't Peel a Mushroom?

By Laila Storch

Table of Contents

Preface

Acknowledgments

Introduction

1. Compiègne and the Tabuteau Family
2. Paris Conservatoire: Tabuteau's Studies with Georges Gillet, 1902—1904
3. Arrival in America: Walter Damrosch and the New York Symphony Orchestra, 1905—1908
4. The Metropolitan Opera: Singers and Conductors of the "Golden Age," 1908—1914
5. San Francisco Interlude: The Panama-Pacific International Exposition Orchestra, 1915
6. The Philadelphia Orchestra: The Stokowski Years, 1915—1940
7. Tabuteau as Soloist with the Philadelphia Orchestra: 1915—1954
8. Tabuteau at the Curtis Institute of Music: 1924—1946
9. Lessons with Tabuteau: My Arrival in Philadelphia, January 1943
10. My First Year with Tabuteau at the Curtis Institute: October 1943—May 1944
11. Tabuteau Conducts the Curtis Orchestra: Fall 1944—Spring 1945
12. Tabuteau's Summers in Canada: Salmon Fishing in Nova Scotia
13. Another Year of Study with Tabuteau: 1945—1946
14. Summers in France: The Pingouinette; Back to Philadelphia, 1948
15. Tabuteau's Last Years at the Curtis Institute: 1946—1954
16. The Casals Festivals in Prades and Perpignan: 1950, 1951, and 1953
17. Tabuteau as Seen by His Philadelphia Orchestra Colleagues
18. Retirement in France: La Coustiéro, 1954—1959
19. Tabuteau's Final Years in Nice: 1959—1966
20. Philadelphia Postlude: Tabuteau's Playing; His Musical Ideas and Influence

Appendix 1. Introduction and Text Transcription for the Tabuteau-Wolsing CD

Appendix 2. The Students of Marcel Tabuteau at the Curtis Institute of Music

Appendix 3. The Tabuteau System: Essay and Outline by Marc Mostovoy

Glossary of Terms Used by Oboists

Notes

Selected Bibliography

Index